Capgemini positioned as a Leader in Software Testing Services by NelsonHall

Paris, December 11, 2017 – Capgemini, today announced it has been positioned as a Leader by NelsonHall in the overall NelsonHall Vendor Evaluation and Assessment Tool (NEAT) for Software Testing Services. Capgemini was named a Leader based on the evaluation criteria of “ability to meet future client requirements” and “ability to deliver immediate benefit”.

The report acknowledged Capgemini’s strengths in being able to provide “comprehensive offerings in both digital and Agile/DevOps and complementing these with its historical consulting capabilities, backed up by methodologies and best practices.” Its offerings were recognized as being “highly visible through its TMap series of books (with its last two books covering IoT and Cloud) and World Quality Reports.” Capgemini’s “scale in testing both offshore and onshore” was also highlighted as one of its strong capabilities to determine the positioning as a Leader in the annual NelsonHall report, which assessed 25 service providers across the globe.

Hans van Waayenburg, Member of the Group Executive Committee at Capgemini and Head of Sogeti said: “We are proud to achieve consecutive recognition by NelsonHall for our market expertise in Software Testing. We provide our customers with a range of services in Digital QA and Testing which are equipped to meet complex organizational challenges globally. Capgemini’s world class Testing services are based on efficient delivery models, Agile and DevOps, which lead our clients to secure desired business outcomes such as increased customer satisfaction, revenue generation and optimized business processes.”

Dominique Raviart, IT Services Practice Director, Nelsonhall said: “In the digital testing space, Capgemini has a breadth of services in UX testing that is wide in scope, and includes usability testing and mobile testing, and includes integration with crowdtesting vendors. Capgemini is also identifying use cases with AI, including test coverage, test case mapping, and is working on creating chat bots.”

Capgemini is at the forefront of innovation, digital transformation and a customer driven approach to Testing. Capgemini’s industry recognized QA and Testing services such as ¹TMap® and TPI®, support business transformation for customers worldwide.
